EDUCATION SCHEDULE

How to Perform a MAT Assessment without a Mat.

10:00am and 2:30pm

Brenlee Mogul Rotman has worked as an Occupational Therapist for thirty years. She has considerable experience in assessing people with a full spectrum of issues ranging from the need to adjust the height of their footrest to creating a custom system from scratch.

Her presentation addresses the real world problem of assessing a client's mild to moderate seating and positioning needs in their home environment. An environment where the only surfaces you have access to are the mattress they sleep on, the old wheelchair they are replacing and maybe a trial chair the vendor brought in.

The Fundamentals of Mechanical Lifting Device Selection

Noon to 1:00pm

Recently Vancouver Coastal Health and Fraser Health have adopted the "Home is Best" approach:-

"We support a philosophy that home, with appropriate supports, is the best place to recover from illness and injury, manage chronic conditions and live out final days. Evidence shows that returning home from hospital as soon as possible with the supports you need gives you the best chance to regain your strength and independence, even if you are not yet totally able to care 100% for yourself."

In many instances one of the "appropriate supports" is a lifting device.

Sue Rodger has worked as an OT for seventeen years, twelve in the community. She has considerable experience prescribing both portable and permanent lifting equipment in home environments.

This presentation will give you an understanding of the merits and drawbacks of the various lifting devices available to people being discharged into the community. Her presentation will touch on the options available and the considerations that need to be factored into the equation when making a recommendation.
